Static's cream ground is strewn with spontaneous black strokes—or are they hastily stored vinyl albums? Consider the hand-dyed Tibetan wool and Chinese silk with chain-stitch embroidery on cotton canvas backing, or opt for hand-knotted. Also available in mauve/white, Wheat/gold, Seafoam/Seabreeze, or silver. 212-842-1705; judyrosstextiles.com. circle 660 ➤

Natural dyes vividly distinguish Diversity, one of six patterns from Rich Morrow and Kimberle Frost's Common Threads collection. The wool rug is hand-knotted in Afghanistan through Arzu, a non-profit providing economic sustainability to Afghan women. In three colorways and sizes: 5 feet by 7 feet, 6 by 9, and 8-feet square. 800-221-1540; designtex.com. circle 703

Not all designs are created equatorially—but Tropical certainly was.

Sultry, stylized growths spring into hand-spun Tibetan wool and silk, hand-knotted by a family in Katmandu. The GoodWeave-certified rug accepts custom sizes and colors. If you prefer, have it hand tufted. 505-265-0144; joanweissman.com.

Durkan

Fashion designer Todd Oldham's upbeat sensibilities go on safari in Animal Attraction.

A kingdom of jungle-inspired patterns pervades 12 broadloom styles, and 14 area rugs, in a choice of cotton bindings and faux leather detailing.

Pick from 30 grades of nylon, or wool-nylon instead. 800-554-6637; durkan.com.
