

About Our Products

Judy Ross Textiles' products are made by hand using the finest quality materials, such as New Zealand wool and fine rayon threads. Our highly skilled artisans have been making our products for more than twenty years. We introduce a new collection twice a year, working closely with our dyers to produce new colors and adding new designs.

The pillow collection pairs centuries-old chain stitch techniques with contemporary design. Each pillow is meticulously embroidered by hand using the finest 3-ply New Zealand wool. The wool is hand dyed, which adds depth and nuance to the color. Master artisans embroider fields of small, dense stitches that give the designs movement, luster, texture, and durability. Some styles incorporate rayon yarns to impart lustrous highlights throughout. Textural contrasts between wool and rayon, as well as straight rows of stitches, add depth to the embroidery.

About Our Artisans

Chain stitch is a 2,500-year-old artisanal embroidery technique originally used by Kashmiri men to embellish shawls with paisley and floral patterns. The needle passes through the fabric once per stitch to create a distinctive chain-like pattern. An embroiderer can be both swift and precise, controlling the tightness of the stitch and the direction of the embroidered even in complex designs. We take pride in helping to preserve this centuries-old tradition.

Judy Ross' passion for chain stitch developed when she traveled in India working as an independent textile designer. Judy lived on a houseboat on Upper Dal Lake, and collaborated with the master embroiderers to enhance the traditional appearance of chain stitch by using the straight, up-and-down stitches and dense, completely embroidered fields of flawless stitches that you can see today in our line of impeccably stitched contemporary pillows.
